

Abstract

The present invention includes methods for predicting the quantitative response of probes on a microarray. In a preferred embodiment, sequence dependent parameters are predicted and then used to predict probe response.